

Arlington Teacher Gives Students Lesson From The South Pole

Kate Miller, a 2012 KSTF Teaching Fellow and physics teacher at Washington Lee High School, recently returned from the South Pole. While there, she worked closely with scientists and engineers on the IceCube Neutrino Observatory. Learn more about her trip in a recent ABC7 feature.